Belief Persists That Friction Was Cause in Most of Buildings

The concussion due to the explosion at the plant of the Pennsylvania Fireworks Company, Devon, Pa., yesterday, which snuffed out ten lives, injured scores of others and laid waste the seven-acre plant of the company.

PHILADELPHIA, Apr. 4.—(INS)—Chester county authorities resumed their probe today of the disastrous explosion at the Pennsylvania Fireworks Display Corporation's plant at Devon, Pa., yesterday, which snuffed out ten lives, injured scores of others and laid waste the seven-acre plant of the company.

The barren seven-acre tract sprinkled with small bits of debris, all that remains from the eight one-story buildings comprising the plant, and the shattered windows of nearby structures, bore mute witness today to the terrific force of the blasts which were felt over a radius of 35 miles, extending into four distant States.

The ten victims are located in a mortuary at Malvern awaiting the inquest of Coroner H. C. Ford, called for 10 a. m. today. In the meantime physicians reported that five other persons that were seriously injured by the series of six blasts are in a "fair condition" at the Bryn Mawr Hospital.

The belief still persisted this morning that friction, that is the rubbing together of some of the finished fireworks stored in the center building where the first blast occurred, caused the blast. The first blast is believed to have caused the dislodging of fireworks in the other plants resulting in friction in each building which caused all the structures to blow up.

Coroner Ford has summoned Alexander Vardaro, president and manager of the plant, his daughter, Antoinette and a son, Victor, as the principal witnesses at the inquest today.

They will be asked concerning reports that 30 kegs of powder were received at the plant shortly before the disaster.

Miss Vardaro said usually only five kegs were kept at the plant. However, the truck driver who delivered the explosives refused to return the other 25 and they were placed in the storehouse.

PHILADELPHIA, Apr. 4.—(INS)—With three persons still missing, police and firemen today searched the explosion-wrecked plant of the Pennsylvania Fireworks and Display Company, at Devon, a suburb. Eleven persons were killed and property heavily damaged yesterday when three terrific blasts shook the plant. Thirty persons were injured. The cause of the explosion was not determined.

A rigid investigation of the tragedy was forecast today when Theodore J. Gould, assistant director of the Bureau of Inspection of the Department of Labor, said no permits were issued in Pennsylvania for the manufacture of fireworks. He said Pennsylvania laws permit the manufacture of powder only.

Alexander Vardaro, owner of the plant, was taken into custody and questioned by authorities. He said he thought friction caused the explosion. He said it was possible friction of some kind caused a quantity of dynamite stored on the property to explode.

Homes near the plant were heavily damaged by the blasts and buildings for miles around were shaken.

Newtown Team Wins Over Bensalem High in Debate

Newtown high school debating team was accorded the honor of winning the debate with Bensalem Township high school debaters at Bensalem high auditorium yesterday afternoon, vote being two to one.

Newtown group had the affirmative side of the question: "Resolved that the present chain store system is detrimental to the best interests of our nation."

Judges were: Professor Nicols, of Frankford high school; Professor David, of Rider College, Trenton; John Leslie Kileoyne, of Bristol.

Newtown debaters were: Marjorie Buckman, Carol Shuster, Edwin Williams, with James Kobb as alternate. The group representing Bensalem consisted of: Grace Barth, James Morimer, Horace Stares, and Horace Ellerson, alternate.

Some of the frame dwellings located near the plant of the Penn Fireworks Co., near Devon, Pa., which were wrecked by the explosion of stored fireworks in the factory. The blast was heard thirty miles from the scene. It is believed that ten persons, including two women, all employees of the factory, were killed and four score others injured. Insert shows students of a nearby military academy who assisted in the rescue work carrying one of the victims from the scene.

MOST LICENSES GO TO NON-RESIDENTS

70% of Applicants for Permits to Wed Came from Outside of County

101 COUPLES GOT THEM

DOYLESTOWN, Apr. 4.—The Bucks County marriage license bureau was well patronized during March by non-residents of the county for the official records show that 70 per cent of the applicants who were granted licenses were not residents of the county.

There were 101 couples granted licenses in March. Out of the 202 applicants there were 141 who came from points outside the county. Trenton alone furnished fifty-six applicants and Philadelphia furnished forty-six.

More than half of the applicants granted licenses were between twenty-one and twenty-five years of age. Only four male applicants were under twenty-one. Nineteen female applicants were not twenty-one. Advanced age was missing from the crop of applicants in March, there being no applicants over sixty and only two over fifty.

Five of the male applicants had been divorced and three female applicants were divorced. The applicants came from five states including in addition to Pennsylvania, the states of California, New Jersey, New York and Ohio.

Sixty-seven of the 101 women who were granted licenses had occupations other than housework according to the answers given to the questions asked by the Clerk of Orphans' Court and his deputy.

Bristol and Quakertown each furnished eight applicants while Morrisville and Doylestown produced seven apiece. Langhorne is the only borough in the county that did not have a marriage license applicant during March.

Ten of the male applicants and seven of the female applicants had been married once before. Very few of the women were older than their partners and there was no great difference in the ages of the applicants.

Ages of the applicants grouped is as follows:

	Male	Female
Under 21 years	4	19
21 to 25 years	56	62
25 to 30 years	21	11
30 to 40 years	16	7
40 to 50 years	2	1
50 to 60 years	2	1

1930 DIOGENES, IN FORM OF CENSUS TAKER, BUSY

Humor, Pathos, Tragedy Are Met in the Gigantic Task Just Started

HUMOROUS ANSWERS

By Paul Glynn

I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

PITTSBURGH, Apr. 4.—To the earnest seeker after truth, or to the student of human nature, is unhesitatingly recommended a day in the company of the 1930 Diogenes, a census taker engaged in the compilation of Uncle Sam's fifteenth decennial census.

Humor—courage—pathos—tragedy. All these and more are met with as the gigantic job of finding the answers to "who, what, when, where and why" and countless other questions goes on.

For instance, the first question, "who is the head of the house," brings forth a flood of variegated answers, some unconsciously and some consciously humorous.

"My husband thinks he is," replied one young housewife with a smile. And another, not so young, declared with finality, "I am!"

And then there is the question relating to the ownership of property. One answer to the query, "Do you own your home," was:

"We do—that is, we and the people who hold the mortgage."

And at what price would the owner sell?

"Why, as much as we could get, of course."

Eager interest and an almost total absence of resentment is noted as the enumerator questions each resident. The queries are put in an impersonal, efficient manner, thus adding to the rapidity of the compilation.

Unemployment proved to be about the biggest obstacle in the way of the census takers to date. Several persons were reluctant to tell of the length of time they had been jobless; some refused outright to answer. In the latter case the enumerator reported to his chief.

If all efforts by the chief, and then by the census supervisor, fail to bring an answer the case is referred to the United States marshal. Incidentally, the penalty for failure to answer is $100 or 60 days in jail. A fine of $500 or one year in jail—or both—may be imposed for making false statements to the enumerator. These penalties are prescribed by Section Nine of the census act and apply to all persons over 18 years old.

GROWTH OF ANDALUSIA, ALTHOUGH SLOW, HAS BEEN STEADY; POPULATION IS NOW GIVEN AT ABOUT 1,000, WITH 650 REGISTERED VOTERS

Number of Greenhouses Are Located in the Village — Three Clubs There are Craftsman Club, League of Women Voters and Republican Club; All Very Active

(This is the third of a series of articles dealing with the founding, growth and development of present day Andalusia, Bensalem Township. This installment as well as the one which is to follow contain much data of an interesting and authoritative nature and the series when completed will make a fairly accurate history of the village.)

By Staff Correspondent (Continued From Yesterday)

The town has had a slow but steady growth since its first days, when a few dwellings and the one public house formed the village. New families have made their homes there, necessitating the erection of new houses from year to year. During the past few years a number of people, originally from Philadelphia, have settled in Andalusia, several locating in Torresdale Manor, there. One of the latest developments is Andalusia Heights, at the upper end of Andalusia. Here are found a dozen or more new structures, built during the past three or four years.

The population of the village is in the neighborhood of 1,000. At present there are on the list of registered voters 650 individuals. All voting for this immediate section is done at the well-known and ancient Red Lion Inn. The inn is the only place where elections have been conducted in Andalusia proper.

The registration assessor who resides on Bristol Pike is Frank P. States, who also is reputed to be the oldest Andalusia resident. Mr. States, who likes to recall and recount interesting bits of news relative to the early days of the place, is 78 years of age. Mr. and Mrs. States conduct a small notion store on the pike, and are familiar figures about Andalusia. The couple has enjoyed a happy, useful life, serving their community well, and are beloved by many.

Although there are no large industries located in the place comprising this brief history, there are a number of florists, operating greenhouses there. Included in this group of Andalusia's foremost business men are: George Keaton, William Keaton,

AWARDED VERDICT IN "FRIENDLY SUIT"

Chalfont Veterinarian Gets $312.70 Damages From Contractor Bailey

OTHER COURT CASES

DOYLESTOWN, Apr. 4.—In his suit against John Bailey, local contractor, in this instance "a friendly suit," Dr. Wesley Massinger, Chalfont veterinarian and a member of the faculty of National Farm School, was yesterday awarded a verdict for $312.70 and costs.

Bailey was sued by Dr. Massinger following injuries sustained four years ago when the veterinarian walked into an open ditch on the Farm School property that had been dug by the defendant's employees in the act of laying a sewer line. The accident happened at night and according to Dr. Massinger, no warning lights were placed along the ditch at night.

In the case of Leo Scheppardt, proprietor of a boarding house at Centre Bridge two years ago, in which suit was brought by Scheppardt for $11,000 against Dr. Bailey H. Bell, of New Hope, the plaintiff yesterday suffered a voluntary non-suit when he failed to put in his appearance in court. At the time the suit was started, Scheppardt, in his statement of claim, alleged that Dr. Bell was responsible for having a rail made on his boarding house by John Harman, a New Hope constable, on August 26, 1927, which resulted in loss of business and damage to him.

Before Judge Hiram H. Keller yesterday trial started in the case of Fannie T. Lance, of Point Pleasant, against Wilson Loar, of Gardenville. The plaintiff is seeking to recover damages for injuries alleged to have been sustained in an automobile accident on the Easton highway near Doylestown, on November 23, 1925, near Cross Keys.

CHRISTENED

The infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Polio, of Trenton, was christened in St. Joseph's Church in Trenton on Thursday. The baby was named Angela Marie and the sponsors were Alfred DeCicco and Margaret Breuna, both of Trenton. Mrs. Polio will be remembered as Miss Louise Capella, formerly of Bristol.

INJURED

Frank Kates, of Rosemont, a former resident of Bristol, while en route to visit friends in Bristol last Saturday, met with an automobile accident and was taken to the Montclair, N. J., Hospital.

Good Progress Is Noted On Bristol Twp. School

Members of the Bristol Township school board were all in attendance at the business meeting held in Laurel Bend school house last evening.

It was reported that the work on the new school building on Newport Road is progressing nicely. First floor joists have been placed and work on the laying of the bricks has started. Routine business was transacted and all bills ordered paid.

BUS SERVICE WILL BE IMPROVED WITH A NEW SCHEDULE

Delaware River Coach Company Plans Purchase of New Vehicles

AREA IS TO BENEFIT

Result of Refusal of Commission to Grant Pa. General Transit Co. Permit

With the purchase of additional buses by the Delaware River Coach Company and the promised rearrangement of schedules, it is expected that very soon Bristol will have transportation service that is much improved.

The Delaware River Coach Company officials reached a decision to buy buses and improve service through the placing of additional trips on the route when the Public Service Commission denied the Pennsylvania General Transit Company permission to pick up and deliver through Philadelphia passengers in this section.

For some time the Trenton, Bristol and Philadelphia Railway Company and other bus companies have awaited the decision just reached by the commission. It was this decision that refused permission to the Pennsylvania Company to operate as they desired that led to the move of the Delaware River Coach Company. This coach company is a subsidiary of the trolley company.

When the petition of the Pennsylvania General Transit Company, a subsidiary of the Pennsylvania Railroad, was denied the commission stated there is "undoubted inconvenience in the present arrangement by which trolley passengers must change at City Line and at Frankford L. station in order to reach Philadelphia"; but continued by saying that if the application was to be granted the traffic loss to the T. B. & P. Company would result in the abandonment of the line, and hence greater inconvenience to the people in this area.

Langhorne Students To Broadcast Opera

LANGHORNE, Apr. 4.—Over Station WFL, Philadelphia, will students and teachers of Langhorne high school broadcast the opera "Miss Cherryblossom" tomorrow at three p. m.

The student body members and instructors taking part in this pleasing piece, are also to appear on the stage of I. O. O. F. hall, here, this evening, to present the opera. This performance will be at 8.15 o'clock.

The choruses and solo numbers are numerous and most pleasing.

Included in the group taking part are: Cherryblossom, Elizabeth Sherman; Kokema, Edwin Kephart; John Henry Smith, William A. Thomas; Henry Foster Jones, Charles Beck; Horace Worthington, Robert Sidle; James Young, Alfred Botke; Jessica Vanderpool, Jacqueline Roberts; Toga, James Townsend.

Geisha girls are: Verna Mather, Madeline Griffin, Esther Palmer, Myrtle Fawcett, Gladys Sylvester, Cora LaRue, Kathleen Webb, Elizabeth Boal, Elizabeth Lake.

Difficulties of Prohibition Enforcement Told Rotarians

Assistant District Attorney of Bucks County, John Leslie Kileoyne, gave a most interesting address before members of the Rotary Club of Bristol, at the club's weekly luncheon yesterday. According to Mr. Kileoyne it is impossible to enforce the prohibition laws one hundred per cent when the force of enforcement officers is so small.

Speaking of the illegal traffic of liquor in Philadelphia, Attorney Kileoyne told there are three main sources of bootleg liquor there, namely: Industrial alcohol plants, druggists and the breweries. The speaker remarked that there are 45 of the latter now operating in the city of Philadelphia.

The brewery racketeers have their work on a systematic basis, said Mr. Kileoyne. This makes the work of enforcement harder because they spy on the officers at the headquarters, and use high-powered cars to warn of expected raids. The work of the agents proves dangerous to them, as they have to match their wits against those who are constantly working against them.

WOMEN SEW

The ladies who gathered at the Community House this week to sew for the Needlework Guild were: Mrs. C. L. Anderson, Mrs. George King, Mrs. James Lefferts, Mrs. M. Webb, Mrs. Fred Kring, Miss Katharine Keating, Miss Esther Lawrence and Miss Ida Bruden.

TRAFFIC UNIFORMITY

That state-wide uniformity in traffic control is coming to be realized as highly desirable is proof that nation-wide uniformity would be still more advantageous. Traffic is no longer a local problem. The automobile owner has become a wanderer, and the fact that an unwitting violation of a local rule on his part frequently imperils the safety of the public, makes the problem of general concern.

State-wide uniformity is a good thing, but unless there is some uniformity between states, as new codes are drawn up, there will still be traffic dangers arising from confusion of rules.

In past years some progress was made in this direction by state and national conferences attended by traffic experts and police officials. These conferences should be held not less than once a year. They provide a clearing house for traffic-control ideas, to which every community can go for the solution of its own problems. One of the fruits of such a clearing house is a trend toward uniformity.

Because no two communities have street plans and traffic conditions exactly alike, there never can be absolute uniformity, but traffic lights can mean the same thing everywhere, and the manner of making a left hand turn need not be different in every community.

No plea for uniformity is complete unless it includes a sub-plea for local uniformity. Absolute uniformity in the gestures and methods used by traffic police in directing the movements of motor vehicles is essential. The diverse methods employed are a source of confusion to motorists.

FETILE EFFORTS

Mr. James Joyce is not the first to grow impatient with the English language and seek to construct a new one closer to his heart's desire. But to judge from specimens recently quoted his inventions are not likely to have a longer life than some of their predecessors.

One of the most ambitious of new philologies was that drawn up by the English poet William Barnes, whose ideal was a vocabulary of pure Anglo-Saxon origin, shorn of all foreign derivatives. Among its choicest specimen suggestions were the substitution of "redcraft" for logic, "decusterhood" for criticism, "pushwanking" for perambulation, "folkwain" for omnibus, "mangnahn" for epidemic, "wortlore" for botany, "chud team" for generation, "wirespel" for telegram, "statespellman" for ambassador, "folkdorn" for democracy, "frehlost" for electricity and "four winkle" for quadrangle.

Perhaps the Dorset poet's best effort was the notion that philosophers ought to be content to transform "syllogism" into "redfish" of three thought-puttings.

The Indians had a hard life. But they didn't have to listen to popular songs.

If only intuition would tell the dear creatures which is the break pedal and which the gas.

Foreign policy? Doing seems expedient at the moment and keeping one eye on the feed trough.

"GENERAL CRACK"

BY GEORGE PREEDY

Copyright 1925 by Dodd Mead & Co., Inc.
The Warner Bros. & Vitaphone production starring John Barrymore, is based on this novel.

SYNOPSIS

General Crack, soldier of fortune, has fulfilled his promise of crowning King Leopold as emperor. Victorious, he returns to Brussels, only to learn that Leopold has been promised his wife, Princess Eleanora, whom he had to leave after the marriage ceremony. Eleanora had been affianced to Leopold who reluctantly yielded her to Crack, as the latter's price for entering the year. During the coronation Christian renounces Leopold, and declares he will be accused. He leaves with his things. The Emperor, slightly constipated, now quickly crumbles to pieces.

"Where are you riding?" asked Maria Luisa.
"I do not know. I am in the hands of Knittelfeld. I have made him my Commander-in-Chief. He is a capable but an overbearing man," added Leopold, nervously. "and I cannot tell one day what he will do next. You are safe enough here, but I must go my way."
Maria Luisa remained dutifully behind, though she would have been rather accompanied him in all his perils; nor was she so safe. Within two days the little town capitulated before the Kurlander's advance and Maria Luisa must again fly in the bitter and unfriendly dawn, with but one child as her companion—a boy who had been her brother's page.

She had hoped to reach Altstorf, a small fortified town which held for Leopold, before nightfall; but was, naturally enough, lost in the bewilderment of the devastated fields and broken woods, over which any rapid or easy progress was impossible. Both she and the boy were almost immediately lost, and soon cold and faint with hunger.

"We must pass the night somewhere," said the exhausted Alexander. "It is impossible for us to reach Altstorf tonight, even if we knew the direction—which I do not and even the road has disappeared. Everything is frozen over; I cannot distinguish any path." She believed they were walking on a frozen river, for stiff spikes of willows impeded their progress. The horizon was blotted out in a dense winter fog. Wind and snow were alike borne upon the gathering night.

"We shall be frozen to death," murmured the page, "if we do not find some protection against the weather."
They halted at a large barn, which was the sole building that remained of what had once been a prosperous farm.

The boy had a pistol, and flint and tinder, and was for making a fire; but Maria Luisa, in her great fear, forbade this. "There must be forgers about," she said, "and that would draw their attention. I would rather perish of cold than fall into the hands of the enemy!"

With a shudder of distaste, she made her way into the inner part of the barn, where there yet remained a pile of old sacks and some brushwood. Fearful of rats, she peered about in the sombre gloom. The place was still—appeared to have been deserted even by vermin and insects, and almost as cold as the fields. Yet there was protection from the driving wind and the gathering tempest.

It was like a prison here, the space so confined, the dark so dense! And surely she was freezing to death; the blood in her veins ran so sluggishly.

She wished that she could see a star—even one little star—but the scowling clouds lowered, thick as hate, across the heavens, and a human sound disturbed the ominous stillness. Half in terror, half in hope, Maria Luisa heard the soft sound of horses' hoofs on the bitter air and through the rising wind.

They were riding nearer, and she covered back into the blackness of the barn.

The men came up carefully over the frozen ground, and paused before the barn, the foremost of them

Bristol 'Phone Office Answers 7,000 Calls Daily

Alfred B. Hennessy, manager of the Jenkintown office of the Bell Telephone Co., gave an interesting talk to the members of the Bristol Exchange Club last evening. He used for his topic, "The Inside Story of the Telephone."

The statistical part of his address was very interesting. He said that in 1910, 557 phones had been installed in Bristol. In 1920 the number had increased to 1,300, and this year (1930), 1,800 phones are in use in the town. In 1920, residence phones to the number of 457 had been installed, while today 956 residences are equipped.

In 1912 the Bristol office answered 2,180 calls daily. In 1920, 3,700 were answered, and this year (1930), 7,000 calls come into the Bristol office daily. During the rush hours, 800 calls per hour are taken care of. During each day between 950 and 1050 outside calls pass through the local office.

The Bristol office has 12 employees, including the chief operator. In 1931 the new dial system is to be installed here. When this system is installed it will be possible for a local subscriber to dial Cornwells on the south and Trenton on the north, without calling the Bristol Exchange. Six assistant operators will take care of the long distance calls.

The Bell Telephone Co. has purchased a piece of ground on Pond street, adjoining the Municipal Building, and soon will begin the erection of a new office building which will cost $84,000, including the ground. The interior equipment will cost $121,000, and the changes which are to be made outside in connection with the installation of the dial system, will cost $20,000 more.

Several reels of moving pictures, which explained the operation of the new dial system were shown.

SHAMROCKS NOSE OUT
GYPSIES IN FIRST GAME

By T. M. Juno
Playing an extra five-minute period, the Shamrocks nosed out the Gypsies in the first game of the three-game series to determine the champions of the A. O. H. League.

The game was played on the A. O. H. floor and the final count was 31-29. It was John Dougherty's field goal that actually won the game for the "Petties." With but forty seconds to go he made a nice shot which gave the winners the edge.

It was the same youth that almost lost the game for the Shamrocks. With one minute to go in the second half and a fine chance of "freezing" out the Shamrock guard attempted a back pass when no one was near. "Ad" Roe, seeing the mistake, grabbed the loose oval and sunk in a twin-pointer which sent the game into an extra five-minute period.

The game was a regular see-saw melee and featured by several spurts by both teams. The Gypsies held a comfortable lead during the first half but the Shamrocks gradually worked their score to an even basis and then passed the first half champs.

Then "Ad" Roe went on a last minute scoring spree which again put the teams on even terms but Dougherty came through with a double-decker which gave the "Petties" the first victory of the championship series.

Andy McClafferty, "Jimmie" Lake, and "Ad" Roe were the high scorers of the fray.

"Coggie" Coyle and G. Dougherty put up a fine defensive battle.

The next game will probably be played Tuesday night.

Bible Class Members
Enjoy Banquet; See Circus

Annual banquet and entertainment of the members of the Alpha Bible Class of the Presbyterian Sunday School was held last night with nearly 50 in attendance. The affair was held in the banquet hall of the church where a most delicious menu was enjoyed and there was a general good time at the entertainment which followed. The entertainment, given by members of the class, was in the form of a circus. Nothing was left to the imagination. There was saxophone, peanuts, pink lemonade, balloons and all of the accessories which go with a regular honest-to-goodness circus.

The hall was decorated in the form of a tent, the center ceiling support being the main tent pole. From this center there were streamers of crepe paper which gave the appearance of a real tent. Here the diners sat and enjoyed this tempting food:

Grape fruit, cricken noodle soup, chicken patties, browned potatoes, fresh green peas, buttered beets, sherbert, pineapple salad, ice cream, fancy cakes and coffee.

The decorations were yellow and white and the tables were graced with bouquets of yellow and white daisies. The favors were old fashioned buttonnieres.

At the conclusion of the banquet the evening was turned over to the entertainment committee. This committee had arranged a circus and the various characters usually found at a circus were portrayed by the members of the class.

The ringmaster was Mrs. Robert

Ruehl and she cracked the whip in great style. Miss Bertha Hetherington was bandmaster and swung the baton, as the parade proceeded around the ring at the opening ceremony. The Hargrave sisters—Maybelle and Dorothy—were the bareback riders. The cage of wild animals was led by Miss Emily Bracken, taking the part of the clown and Mrs. Della Heckert of the wild "man." Miss Elizabeth S. Rue, portraying Barney Google, led Sparky. It took two to take the part of "Spaaky" and Miss Amy Valentine and Mrs. Sylvester Brady played the part. Miss Gertrude Deibler acted as the monkey and the penguins were Mrs. Charles Pete and Mrs. Warren Snyder. The remaining members of the class and what guests there were present formed the audience and they were convulsed with laughter. It was a circus given for women only and only women participated.

Growth of Andalusia
Has Been Slow But Steady

A. H. Smith, is now in operation, having been established about one year ago. This small business place is located in a building at the rear of the Smith home on Bristol Pike. The textile mill furnishes employment for six men.

Andalusia boasts of a number of grocery stores located on a number of streets. Meat markets, notion and candy and ice cream stores are also in evidence, as well as a number of gasoline stations.

The older residents, men and women, who are affiliated with lodges and fraternal organizations, journey to the nearby towns for the meetings of organizations in adjacent sections. A large number of the boys and girls of the place are members of the Boy and Girl Scout troops in Cornwells Heights and Bristol.

There are three clubs comprised of men and women of the locality. These are: The Co. (man) Club, the Bensalem Township League of Women Voters, and the Republican Club.

The Republican Club is the infant of the three, being organized but recently. It was about the beginning of 1929 the Republican club was formed and elected at that time being: President, John Curtis; vice-president, Charles Dunk; secretary, Mrs. Theodore T. Schnupp; treasurer, Joseph Sharp. Meetings take place the first Thursday evening of each month.

For two years the League of Women Voters of the township, which is really located in Andalusia, has been active. Mrs. William J. Hunter, of Bristol Pike and Walnut avenue, heads the group of workers. Other officers include: First vice-chairman, Mrs. George Bauer; second vice-chairman, Mrs. William Shibe; secretary, Mrs. Andrew J. Keyser; treasurer, Mrs. Austin O. Larson. May of 1928 was the time of the organizing of the league. The first Tuesday afternoon of each month the members gather for a business session.

"LOVE LIKE OURS CAN NEVER DIE," MUTTERED MARMADUKE, THICKLY.

"You'd be surprised," replied the sprightly Sophia. "With a rasping voice like yours, love is likely to fly out of the window and land on the back of its neck. What our love needs is insurance."

"What insurance?" he wondered.

"The insurance of OLD GOLDS, boy friend. Throat-ease and tender tones caused by the mellow, mild, heart-leaf tobacco; vocal cords that act without a struggle; no tickle, scratch or scrape. OLD GOLD yourself, Marmie, and we shall be inseparable. There's not a bark in a billion."

U. S. NAVY NO LONGER ACCEPTS "BAD BOYS" AS COB RECRUITS

(This is the second of a series of articles on the United States Battle Fleet by a special correspondent of the Courier and International News Service, who recently made a cruise aboard the U. S. S. Tennessee.)

By William Parker
U. S. S. Special Correspondent
U. S. S. TENNESSEE, Apr. 4.—The days when wild boys were sent to the navy to be reformed are over.

Physical, mental and moral standards have been raised and, by and large, the men of the navy are more temperate and ambitious than similar groups of the same age "on the beach," as the navy refers to the land.

If the public sees a couple of good-natured blue jackets singing in the rain and exhibiting other signs of intemperance, the navy men, in turn, ask what happens after a college football game.

Boys who return to ship after shore leave are carefully looked over by a husky sergeant at arms. If they are intoxicated they are sent to the brig (jail) and come before the captain at "mast" the next morning. "Mast" is the lower or discipline court of the ship. If it is one of the ship's athletes who is up for intoxication he will not soon touch liquor again after he hears the captain's tongue lashing, and the captain's statement of statistical facts of the effect of alcohol on an athlete.

It is not yet generally known on land that the navy will not allow bad boys to remain in service. There is going on at this time an acrimonious correspondence between the captain of a battleship and a superior court judge in a Western state.

A bluejacket was convicted in the superior court for stealing a watch. The judge paroled the boy to the ship's captain. The captain promptly summoned the boy and witnesses before a court martial and he was promptly dismissed from the navy. The judge learned of this action and wrote an indignant protest to the captain. The captain in reply wrote the judge asking how he would like to have bad boys of the navy turned over to the court to be reformed.

Due to the present selective method of obtaining men, the number of desertions decreased from approximately 7,000 yearly in past years to 450 last year.

One of the principal evils, enlisted men learn, is the "shore harpie." She encourages the men to drink, keeps them intoxicated until she has gotten all of their money and they have overstayed their leave. The men then are listed as deserters. The "shore harpie" notifies the ship where a man is and collects $25 reward.

Men for the navy are recruited from five areas, which cover the United States. After the application is signed the applicant is not taken into the service immediately. A confidential report is obtained from his last school teacher and last employer. In addition, he must measure up to certain physical and mental requirements. Increased thoroughness at recruiting stations has materially reduced the number of misfits.

Each recruit also must obtain the consent of his parents or guardian before he is accepted. This automatically eliminates runaway boys, and young thieves who are dodging the police.

Before being placed aboard ship, enlisted men are sent to training stations and trade schools. Here they indicate their preference in professions and thereafter specialize in that work.

At the training stations the enlisted men are taught to forget they are civilians. They are instructed in obedience, deportment, hygiene, care of person and clothes. There also follows aptitude and intelligence test.

After four or more months the enlisted men come aboard ship and are put under instruction of a commissioned officer, usually a lieutenant. They are kept away from the seasoned crew to avoid hazing, for even a blue-jacket likes to have fun at the expense of a raw recruit. They are made acquainted with every section and detail of the ship.

There are thirty such youths aboard the U. S. Tennessee.

Once in the navy, it is possible for a youth who has had a high school education to rise to the highest rank, that of admiral, although there is at present no admiral who has come up from ranks.

By passing specified examinations, men are enabled to go to the Naval Academy at Annapolis, there to become officers, or as a high navy official once said, "officers and gentlemen."

POTTSVILLE MAN, 74, ENTHUSES OVER KONJOLA

Suffered Many Years From Painful Ailments—Konjola
Came to Rescue

MR. CHARLES H. BECKER

"My age seemed to make no difference to this new medicine, Konjola," said Mr. Charles H. Becker, 200 North Center street, Pottsville. "I suffered for several years with stomach and kidney trouble—then rheumatism attacked me. Every meal meant suffering from gases and belching. My kidneys pained me, especially at night and sleep was always difficult and often out of the question. My joints and legs became sore and stiff from rheumatism and I was utterly miserable."

My friends induced me to try Konjola and this new medicine proved to be just what I wanted. My system was cleansed and invigorated, constipation passed and my stomach soon became normal again. Today I eat what I wish without the least discomfort. My rheumatism has been banished and my kidneys and bladder function perfectly. I can never be too enthusiastic regarding all this great medicine did for me."

Konjola has become the most talked of medicine in America because it makes good. And Konjola makes good in the most stubborn cases when given a fair trial. Six to eight bottles is recommended as a fair test.

Konjola is sold in Bristol, Pa., at Hoffman's Cut Rate Store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—(Adv.)

Tendered Dinner Upon Birthday Anniversary

A surprise birthday testimonial dinner was tendered Mrs. James Johnson Wednesday evening at the Second Baptist and Bethel A. M. E. congregations.

Mrs. Johnson received many useful and beautiful gifts. A purse was presented to Mrs. Oleada Osborn.

Those who attended the dinner given in honor of Mrs. Johnson were: Mr. and Mrs. James Johnson, Rev. and Mrs. Edward Fells, Rev. and Mrs. H. Willhite, Rev. and Mrs. W. Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. Noah West, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Roe, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Darrah, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Ringgold, Rev. Edson Lindsay, C. Fells, Mrs. John Fisher, Mrs. Charles H. Mercher, Mrs. Augustus Jenett, Mrs. Oleada Osborn, Arthur Mines, Misses Sarah Osborn and Ella Ringgold, Mrs. Clementine Anderson, Misses Clara Johnson, Gertie Ringgold, Edna Fells, James Johnson, Jr.

Electric Scenic Display Makes Windows Attractive

Much attention has been drawn to the show windows of Abe Popkin's shoe store these last few evenings.

Mr. Popkin, always on the look-out for something new in which to display his merchandise and improve the appearance of his windows, has had installed an electric scenic display in each window. It is the last word in this art and has to be seen to be fully appreciated.

Thomas Smoyer, who is a student at Rutgers College, New Brunswick, N. J., passed the weekend at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Smoyer, of 217 Market street.

Held on Smuggling Charge

Jacob Blum, accused of attempting to smuggle the $500,000 worth of narcotics seized in two trunks in the liner Ile de France recently, being brought ashore by a Federal agent after his transfer from the liner Berengaria to a coast guard cutter. Blum was Europe-bound when authorities wirelessly the ship to hold him and bring him back to the United States. He is under indictment on charges of smuggling and forgery, the latter in connection with a passport application.

Entertains Friends In Honor of Birthday

Mrs. Ida K. Appleton recently celebrated her birthday anniversary by entertaining friends at cards, held at the home of her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Appleton, of Walnut street. The guests enjoyed the evening playing "500" and pin-ochle and each player received a prize. At a late hour, the guests adjourned to the dining room where a sumptuous repast was served. Favors were lolly-pops dressed as dolls, and a large birthday cake with candles was placed in the center of the table. The guests departed at a late hour, wishing Mrs. Appleton many more happy birthdays.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Willard Wilson and daughter Jean, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Appleton and daughter Margaret, Mrs. A. G. Britton, Mrs. David Neill, Mrs. Robert Patterson, Mrs. Warren Thompson, Mrs. Ida K. Appleton, all of Bristol; Mrs. Annie Lovett and daughter, of Morrisville; John Jeffries and Miss Mabel Letting, and Mrs. Katharine Simpson, of Philadelphia.

Mrs. Appleton was the recipient of many birthday gifts.

—BELL SYSTEM POLICY

The Most Service

..... WHY "the most service"?

Because the value of your telephone service depends on the number of telephones you can reach.

Telephone service is different.

If yours were the only automobile in the world it would take you just as far as it does now. If yours were the only heating system your home would be just as warm as it is today.

But if yours were the only telephone it would be useless. Its value lies in the fact that it can be connected with other telephones. The more telephones with which it can be connected, the greater its usefulness.

Each day your telephone service is growing in scope and value. Last year 80,000 new telephones were added in Pennsylvania alone. By the end of 1930 we anticipate 80,000 more.

Increasing complexity of the telephone service mechanisms is inherent in a growing inter-communication service. Telephone research, invention, discovery are meeting this problem.

Your service will continue to grow in scope, usefulness and value.

Another Doctor Endorses Flaxolyn

"I Tried Flaxolyn Myself. Its Power to Do the Body Good Really Surprised Me!"

Following is a letter from Dr. Lewis of Pittsburgh to Dr. Harris H. Luntz (M. D., D. O.), the discoverer of Herbal Flaxolyn:

"Dear Dr. Luntz: When your Flaxolyn was first brought to my attention I must confess that I was mighty skeptical about the claims which were made for it by many of my friends who said they had taken it. One man was so enthusiastic about Flaxolyn and told me how wonderfully it had helped him, that, somehow or another, he convinced me that it might have merit.

"Being rather run down myself at the time, and recognizing the symptoms of auto-intoxication, I decided to try Flaxolyn myself. I felt that if it didn't do me any good, at least it couldn't do me any harm.

"I want to tell you now that I am well satisfied that Flaxolyn has genuine merit — it acts upon the stomach, liver and the intestinal tract in a natural and efficient way.

"As a rule I do not endorse any internal preparation, but I am so well satisfied that Flaxolyn can do an immense amount of good for the people here, that I am perfectly willing to allow my name and picture to be used in an open endorsement of Flaxolyn.

"I am not sufficiently versed in pharmaceutical circles to know what it is in Flaxolyn that makes it superior to any other preparation it has been my fortune to come in contact with, but I do know that I can sincerely recommend it as a remarkable aid to health."

You Need Not Be Sick to Receive Flaxolyn's Great Benefits

Flaxolyn is not only for sick people. The man or woman who feels 100 per cent fit at all times is rare. If you ARE sick, or generally ailing or rundown and tired out, you certainly should try Flaxolyn. In fact, it is a duty to yourself and to your family that you give this proven, meritorious prescription a fair trial.

If, however, you are not really sick, but feel that you could use greater strength and greater energy; if your friends tell you that you are not looking your best and you want that wonderful, natural good color that comes from a healthier condition, it would be a mighty good thing for you to get yourself a large, economical bottle of Flaxolyn and try it out for a while. See how it helps to bring a new sense of physical fitness. It drives out those intestinal toxic poisons which are so common even with people who think they are healthy. It activates the bile flow from the liver and stimulates the digestive fluids, so that you get more benefit from the food you eat.

GUARANTEE

Flaxolyn must bring a satisfactory health improvement by the sixth pleasant spoonful, or return the partly-used bottle to the drug store and get your money back.

Don't delay taking Flaxolyn. This pleasant-tasting, health product cannot hurt you and it may do you a tremendous amount of good. There are any number of folks right here who tell how the new Flaxolyn has put new pep in their step, new keenness in their appetite, new brightness in their faces, and new zest in their lives. Druggists can now supply you with new Herbal Flaxolyn.

STATE TO HAVE FOUR LIGHTED AIRWAYS

HARRISBURG, April 4.—Pennsylvania will have four lighted airways in addition to the Federal mail route through Bellefonte, the State Aeronautics Commission announced today.

Surveys of two of the new airways have been completed by the commission and the aeronautics branch of the Federal Department of Commerce and one will be opened about July 1 and the second in September.

The Commonwealth has executed leases on the intermediate fields and the actual work of conditioning them will be started soon. The new routes, all being south of the present mail route, are considered safer, as there is less wild territory and they follow closely the trans-Pennsylvania bus routes of the Lincoln and adjoining highways.

Airway No. 1 has been established by the State Commission and the Department of Commerce and has been designated as the Columbus-Philadelphia route, the cities and towns with Pennsylvania on the route being Washington, Pittsburgh, Indiana, Ebensburg, Hollidaysburg, Altoona, Williamsburg, Lancaster, Coatesville and Philadelphia. It will be operated in September.

Airway No. 2 has been designated as the Cleveland-Washington route and will be operated by the State commission and Federal bureau. The route extends from Beaver Falls, Pittsburgh, Greensburg, Buckstown, Everett, McConnellsburg and State Line. It will be put in operation in July.

Airway No. 3 will connect with No. 2 and extend through McConnellsburg, Chambersburg, Gettysburg, York and Lancaster, where it will connect with No. 1 to Philadelphia.

Airway No. 4 will connect with No. 2 and extend through McConnellsburg, Carlisle, Harrisburg, Lebanon, Reading, Allentown and Easton, following the William Penn Highway east from this city. At Easton this route will connect with the New York-Cleveland Mail Route.

Beacons will be stretched along the lanes at ten-mile intervals, and on Route 1 will be located at Washington, Thompsonville, Pittsburgh, Export, Saltsburg, Jacksonsville, Indiana, Strongstown, Ebensburg, Crescon, Duncansville, Williamsburg, Marklesburg, Huntingdon, Mount Union, Newtown-Hamilton, East Waterford, Blair, Stevens Gap, Harrisburg, Middletown, Elizabethtown, Mount Joy, Lancaster, Coatesville, Downingtown, West Chester and Philadelphia.

The beacons on Route No. 2 will be at East Palestine, Beaver Falls, New Sheffield, Moosburg, Pittsburgh, Irwin, Greensburg, Baggaleys, Laurel Ridge, Storetown, Buckstown, Grandview, Wills Mountain, Everett, Siding Hill, McConnellsburg, Tuscarora Summit, Upton and State Line at the Maryland Line.

Six Large Rooms in English Architecture

House No. 646

ATTRACTIVE homes in the English style of architecture have long been popular because of the surprising amount of space that can be given to rooms without giving the home an appearance of hugeness. In this home all of the rooms are of good size with plenty of window space, yet from the exterior the home is one that has a comfortable appearance of coziness.

Permanent beauty has been combined with permanent construction, for face brick are used in the walls of this home. These brick, in a range of color and texture, with harmonizing mortar joints, lend an individuality to the home that is very pleasing, at the same time providing fire-safety, long life and low upkeep that is essential in modern construction.

The recessed entrance under the protecting hood invites one to the roomy hall within, which is equipped with two closets and a lavatory which is in addition to the bath on the second floor. Through an opening on the right is the studio living room with a fireplace at the far end. This room could, if desired, be lowered a few steps to give added height to the room, which now extends to the top of the wing it occupies. On the left is the sun parlor which occupies the corner of the house and is well supplied with windows on two sides. If required, this may be utilized as a bedroom, or can be used as a playroom for the children.

The dining room is connected with both the hall and the sun parlor, and has an attractive breakfast alcove which allows cross ventilation. The well arranged kitchen, with the sink under the windows flanked by two cabinets, has a large pantry and a broom closet. The garage is conveniently attached near the rear porch.

On the second floor are three good-sized bedrooms, all large enough for twin beds if so desired. There are ample closets and a good-sized bath. The bedroom in the front is, of course, the master's and has individual closets for each of the occupants. Casement doors open from this room onto the balcony in the front of the house.

The first floor ceiling height is 8 feet 6 inches; the second floor is 8 feet; and the content is 34,000 cubic feet.

If you are interested in working drawings for House No. 646, the editor of this paper will gladly tell you where they may be obtained.

Britain Plans an Air-Linked Empire

The British dirigible R-100 will attempt to bridge the Atlantic early this year, marking the first step toward the English dream of an air-linked empire. The Graf Zeppelin will start on its sixth trans-Atlantic trip. The United States, focal point of the German airship's former crossings, will be neglected on the sixth, as the big Zeppelin will fly for South America, while the dirigible R-100 in its flight to Canada may determine whether England will carry out its plan of establishing a fleet of dirigibles linking the far-flung units of the empire by air. Major G. H. Scott will be the skipper of the R-100 on its first oceanic crossing.

MAMMOTHS OF THE AIR ARE READY FOR ATLANTIC HOPS

Flight of British Dirigible Will Be Step Toward Dream of Air-Linked Empire — Meanwhile, the Graf Zeppelin Will Start on its Sixth Trans-Atlantic Flight

Aviation is to forge a new and powerful link in the far-flung chain of the British Empire. For years it has been the dream of certain British statesmen to establish an air service between the various widely scattered dependencies and commonwealths, and according to plans just announced these roseate dreams are now tinged with a semblance of reality. For the giant dirigible R-100, that up to now has sailed only in a cloud of criticism, is to undertake the beginning of a world-wide cruise. This spring the airship is to point her nose toward Canada. And in the success of the first lap of the cruise lies the acid test of the feasibility of establishing a regular service.

The R-100 was completed last November at the enormous cost of $2,500,000, and it was at first intended that she would attempt a trans-Atlantic flight to the United States. But it is thought that by making Canada the goal of the initial flight, much of the controversy raging around the airship will be dissipated in the glory of an imperial achievement. The R-100 has recently been the subject of a somewhat acrimonious Parliamentary discussion, several members of the House contending that the dirigible would not be of any value for commercial purposes. This attitude has spurred the Air Ministry to hasty plans for the Canadian flight. And further flights are being discussed and planned. Should suitable weather conditions obtain during the month of April, the flight will be promptly inaugurated. The take-off will be from Cardington, where the R-100 is housed, and the terminus of the flight will be St. Hubert airport, near Montreal, where a 200-foot mooring mast has been especially erected. It is thought probable that Major G. H. Scott, who commanded the first trans-Atlantic crossing by a dirigible—that of the R-34 in 1919—will be in command.

In the meantime the Graf Zeppelin is resting in her hangar, preparatory to beginning her sixth trans-Atlantic trip.

This time the Graf will head for South America, with a possible landing at Rio de Janeiro. She will again be commanded by the gallant and valiant Dr. Hugo Eckener, who knows every mood of his ship. The Zeppelin's gas capacity is 3,795,000 cubic feet, and it is 776 feet in length and 100 feet wide. The R-100 holds 5,000,000 cubic feet of gas, and its dimensions are proportionately greater than those of the German rival. It is hoped by the British Government to establish a Canadian service that will yield a saving of three and a half days on the England-Canada route should the initial flight of the R-100 prove successful.
